KALORAMA CITIZENS ASSOCIATION

2328 NINETEENTH STREET, N.W.

WASHINGTON, D. C. 20009

WILLIAM K. SCHEIRER
PRESIDENT

TELEPHONE

The Kalorama-Adams-Morgan area is the kind of neighborhood where the Biblical injunction to "love thy neighbor" is truly a part of everyday living.

Charles N. Conconi in the Washingtonian Magazine (May 1975) writes: "It is easy to find developments in the Washington area where no one is older than 40 and each household on the street has 2.5 children ranging from 5 to 14 years old. Destroyed was that wondrous concept defined as neighborhood, with its mixture of age groups, nationalities, and social and income levels."

Jim Vance, the nationally recognized black TV news commentator on NBC's Channel 4, recently struck out at planned communities in favor of neighborhoods: "Neighborhoods are getting hard to find these days, but they're easily identified...It's a place where you can always get plenty of advice, usually unsolicited, on everything from tuning your car's engine to planting a tree ...It's a place where you can send your little kid out to play knowing there are at least 50 surrogate parents out there to watch over her, and where a 16 year old will knock on your door to hand you the keys you left in your car. It's where school is in session 24 hours a day, with plenty of old folks who are anxious to share their wisdom, if only you would ask. It's where...kids do things to make you wonder how they and you will ever survive their childhood. It's the kind of place you see far too little of anymore and cherish if you're lucky enough to live in one."

The Kalorama Citizens Association has worked since it was established in 1919 to make the Kalorama-Adams-Morgan area an attractive and interesting neighborhood in which to live and raise families. We believe our work has, indeed, helped to keep this a real neighborhood, one of the few which remain in this city.

Because of the racial and economic mix in this area where black, white, Spanish-speaking, and many other ethnic families live as neighbors, it is one of the most interesting, exciting, and lowest-cost areas in which to live, have a restaurant, manage a store, provide jobs. We welcome the support of everyone who believes in "love thy neighbor" to help this become an even better neighborhood.

THE MAYORAL RACE

WARD	ONE	TWO	THREE	FOUR	FIVE	SIX	SEVEN	EIGHT

	44%	49%	46%	45%	42%	48%	43%	52%

CITYWIDE TOTAL: Washington: 50,746 (54%) Alexander: 42,395 (46%)

Alexander took most of the traditionally most liberal precincts in the city, with the exception of Rock Creek Gardens, Brookland, and portions of Mt. Pleasant, Near and Far NE and Far SE. The only traditionally conservative precinct that Alexander took was the McLean Gardens precinct, where residents are plenty mad at the city for its role in the development plans there. Alexander drew 20 points higher there than citywide as he did in precinct 89 on Capitol Hill. Only in Far SE, did Walter Washington fail to develop significant strength, although his totals in Ward 4 and 5 were not as high as one might expect.

CITYWIDE TOTALS: Barry: 35,065 (24%), Moore: 28,598 (20%), Lewis: 22,122 (15%), Nesbitt: 20,836 (14%), Bergman, 12,018 (8%), White: 8,025 (5%), Crawford: 7,435 (5%), Hernandez: 7,117 (5%), Mann: 4,348 (3%)

Indicating how far Marion Barry has come towards being considered an establishment politician is the fact that with relatively few exceptions the precincts in which he came in first were those won by Walter Washington. Similarly, most of the precincts Doug Moore won were also Walter Washington precincts. Barry also found support in such traditionally liberal areas as Dupont Circle, Southwest, Capitol Hill and the tip of Far SE. Both Del Lewis and Carl Bergman did best west of the park. Lewis, who spent more per vote than any other candidate, only managed to penetrate east of the park in a few places such as Rock Creek Gardens, Southwest and Capitol Hill. Bergman, running a low budget campaign, took 16 of the precincts in Ward III and also carried Foggy Bottom and Capitol Hill. Ruth Nesbitt, while running better citywide than Bergman, failed to win any precincts.
